America's Leading Business Commentator Lou Dobbs to Headline NYC Tax Day Tea Party

Renowned National Commentator to Address the Countries Economic Crisis

Director of controversial film on financial meltdown "Generation Zero" Stephen K. Bannon, to introduce Dobbs and address the Debt Crisis

New York, NY (April 14, 2010) TeaParty365 announced today that the nation's leading business commentator Lou Dobbs (www.loudobbs.com) will headline its Tax Day Tea Party Rally to be held on April 15th from 7:00pm-9:00pm at the James A. Farley Post Office across from Penn Station in mid-town Manhattan.

SIRIUS XM Radio will broadcast the New York City "Tax Day Tea Party" live on its conservative political talk channels (Sirius Patriot 144, XM America Right 166), offering millions of listeners across the country the chance to experience one of the headline-generating "Tea Parties" taking place across the country on April 15. This marks the first time a Tea Party has been broadcast on national radio.

Dobbs will be introduced by Stephen K. Bannon, Writer/Director of the year's most controversial film "Generation Zero" (www.generationzeromovie.com).

Dobbs, an Emmy-award winning journalist has been a leader in warning the country about the perils of deficits and the burgeoning national debt. Dobbs was the first national commentator to criticize the economic elites and political class for its role in the 'de-industrialization' of the country's economy.

Dobbs, described as an "independent populist", has won the Emmy, Peabody, and Cable Ace Awards. He was host of "CNN's Moneyline" and "Lou Dobbs Tonight" from 1980 to 2009 with a brief break in 1999 to 2000. Dobbs currently hosts a three hour national daily radio show "Lou Dobbs Radio" on the U.S. Radio Network. Dobbs is a vocal supporter of the economic and constitutional ideas underlying the Tea Party movement and recently addressed a large Tea Party Rally outside New Orleans, LA.

Stephen K. Bannon is a former officer in the U.S. Navy, Harvard Business School graduate and a Goldman Sachs investment banker. His controversial film "Generation Zero" is being shown across America receiving critical acclaim. Sean Hannity dedicated an unprecedented hour of his broadcast to analyze the film in depth. Bannon speaks forcefully with the warning that the out-of-control national debt presents an "existential crisis for the sovereignty of the country".

TeaParty365 Co-founder David Webb states that "Kellen Giuda and I are thrilled to have Dobbs and Bannon as part of this history-making, largest Tea Party in America. Americans will hear the truth from our nation's financial heart".
